Curriculum Vitae

Adjunct Senior Research Fellow Professor Mark Staniforth

I have broad experience in historical archaeology, maritime archaeology, museums and heritage studies in a career that spans nearly thirty years. I am currently an Adjunct Senior Research Fellow in the School of Geography and Environmental Science at Monash University where I have based my two current research projects and an Adjunct Professor in the Department of Archaeology at La Trobe University. In 2012 I was elected as a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London (FSA). I am a professional member of ICOMOS and an expert member of two ICOMOS International Scientific Committees – ICOMOS-ICUCH (International Committee on the Underwater Cultural Heritage) and ICOMOS-ICAHM (International Committee on Archaeological Heritage Management).

I was the Convenor of the Maritime Archaeology Program (MAP) in the Department of Archaeology at Flinders University for 14 years (1997-2010) where I taught topics in undergraduate and postgraduate maritime archaeology, underwater cultural heritage management and more broadly in archaeology, cultural tourism and museum studies. I am the author of Material Culture and Consumer Society published by Plenum Press of New York in 2003, the editor (with Mike Nash in 2006) of Maritime Archaeology: Australian Approaches (Plenum Press, New York) and (with Mike Hyde in 2001) of Maritime Archaeology in Australia: A Reader (Southern Archaeology, Blackwood, SA). I have published more than 80 publications since 1982.

I am currently a member of a research team that is conducting research at the Bach Dang archaeological site in Vietnam where Kublai Khan's invasion fleet was defeated and largely destroyed in 1288AD. This research started as an international collaborative project involving the Institute of Nautical Archaeology (the leading not-for-profit research institute in the field in the world) at Texas A&M University and the Maritime Archaeology Program (MAP) at Flinders University working in cooperation with researchers from the Institute of Archaeology at the Vietnamese Academy of Social Sciences and the Vietnam Archaeology Academy. The project is led by Dr Lien from the Institute for Archaeology in Vietnam and has been funded through grants from National Geographic magazine as well as a personal HCA-ISL Research Fellowship awarded to me in 2009.

I am currently one of the three Chief Investigators for a large ARC Linkage project (LP110200184): The Australian Historic Shipwreck Protection Project: in situ preservation and reburial of a colonial trader – Clarence (1850). This project, coordinated through ANU, has received $500,000 funding from the ARC and the highest possible endorsement under the Cooperative National Heritage Agenda (the CNHA) and the ten Industry partners include the Commonwealth Department of Sustainability, Environment, Water, Population and Communities as well as the Commonwealth Historic Shipwreck Delegates from all States, the Northern Territory and Norfolk

Island. The site chosen for conducting this focused reburial study is the Australian built trading vessel Clarence (Victorian Heritage register S127) located in Port Phillip, Victoria.

For more than a decade I was the research leader for the Port Adelaide Historical and Maritime Archaeology project, which included two APA (Industry) PhD scholarships awarded by the ARC for research conducted by Susan Briggs (PhD [Flinders] 2005) between 2002 and 2005 and PhD candidate Adam Paterson (APA-Industry 2009-2011). In addition to two completed PhD theses (Briggs & Richards) I was the principal supervisor for another two masters and six honours theses completed on topics within the Port Adelaide area.

I was the State government maritime archaeologist for the Victoria Archaeological Survey in Victoria (1982-1987) and curator of maritime archaeology at the Australian National Maritime Museum in Sydney (1987-1993). I have worked as a consultant for the Australian Commonwealth government (National Historic Shipwrecks Research Plan 1995), the Canadian federal government (advice on national shipwreck legislation), the NSW state government (Parramatta River Survey), for the Hobson's Bay Council in Victoria (pipeline watching brief) and for the Land Management Corporation (Port Adelaide Waterfront Redevelopment Project) I have conducted archaeological survey and excavation in all Australian states as well as overseas, both underwater and on land across a wide range of archaeological sites.

I was appointed to and served on the South Australian Heritage Council for a three-year term (2009-2011). I was previously the Chair of the NSW State government's Maritime Archaeology Advisory Panel (MAAP 1988-1993), the president of the Australasian Institute for Maritime Archaeology (AIMA 1985-87) and president of the Australian Association for Maritime History (AAMH 1998-2003). I served for two terms on the Advisory Council on Underwater Archaeology (ACUA 2000-2007) including three years as deputy Chair (2001-2003) and three years as Chair (2004-2007). I am currently on the Editorial Board of the International Journal of Maritime Archaeology and the Australian journal The Great Circle.

Supervision

Since the completion of my own PhD (awarded in Dec 1999) I have been the principal supervisor for six completed PhD students at Flinders University (Nathan Richards, Susan Briggs, Rob Pilgrim, Jody Steele, Claire Dappert and Jun Kimura) plus two completed Masters (by Research and thesis) students (Kylli Firth and Allison Russell). In addition I have been adjunct (external) supervisor for three successfully completed PhD candidates: Virginia Dellino-Musgrave (University of Southampton, UK),

James P. Delgado (Simon Fraser University, Canada) and Rachel Horlings (Syracuse University, USA). I was the principal supervisor for the following six PhD completions at Flinders University:

Dr Nathan Richards was a holder of an Australian Postgraduate Award (APA) scholarship (1999-2002) and his PhD was awarded in April 2003 for a thesis entitled Deep Structures: An Examination of Deliberate Watercraft Abandonment in Australia. His thesis subsequently won the prestigious, international Society for Historical Archaeology (SHA) Dissertation Prize in 2004 and was published in 2008 by the University Press of Florida as Ships Graveyards: Abandoned watercraft and the archaeological site formation process. He currently holds an academic post as an Associate Professor and teaches maritime archaeology in the Graduate Program in Nautical Archaeology and Maritime History at East Carolina University in the USA see: http://www.ecu.edu/maritime/fac\_ric.htm

Dr Rob Pilgrim was a holder of an Australian Postgraduate Award (APA) scholarship (2000-2004) and his PhD was awarded in 2005 for a thesis entitled The blokemuseum: motor museums and their visitors. After three years as the Senior Curator at the Birdwood National Motor Museum and some time working for the Flinders University Art Museum, Rob is currently the Senior Curator at the Pioneer Settlement Museum in Swan Hill, Victoria see: <http://www.pioneersettlement.com.au/>

Dr Susan Briggs was the holder of an Australian Postgraduate Award - Industry (APAI) scholarship (2002-2005) and her PhD was awarded in Dec 2005 for a thesis entitled Portonian respectability: working class attitudes to respectability in Port Adelaide through material culture 1840-1900. Susan currently works as an Archaeologist in the Archaeology and Heritage Section at ENSR Australia (part of AECOM Technology Corporation) in Sydney, NSW see:

<http://ensr.com.au/EXPERTISE/EnvironmentalServices/ArchaeologyHeritage/tabid/82/Default.aspx>

Dr Jody Steele was a holder of an Australian Postgraduate Award (APA) scholarship (2001-2004) and her PhD was awarded in Dec 2008 for a thesis entitled Public Archaeology in the 21st century: an investigation into public perceptions, programmes and portrayals. After some time working at the Port Arthur convict heritage site and for the Tasmanian Museum and Art Gallery (TMAG), Jody now holds a position as a Heritage Officer (Archaeologist) in the Historic Heritage Section of the Tasmanian Parks & Wildlife Service in Hobart, Tasmania see:

<http://www.parks.tas.gov.au/index.aspx?base=452>

Dr Claire Dappert was a holder of an Endeavour International Research Postgraduate (EIPRS) Award and her PhD was awarded in December 2009 for a thesis entitled The US – China Trade: Capitalism, Consumption and Consumer Identity.

Dr Jun Kimura held a prestigious Endeavour Postgraduate Award and completed his PhD thesis in 2011. He is now a Post-Doctoral Fellow in the Asia Research Centre at Murdoch University in Western Australia see:

<http://www.arc.murdoch.edu.au/researchers/staff/kimura.html>

The three PhD completions that I was the adjunct (external) supervisor for were:

Dr Virginia Dellino-Musgrave who was a PhD candidate in the Department of Archaeology at the University of Southampton (2000-2004) and her PhD was awarded in July 2004 for a thesis entitled Shipwreck Archaeology and Social Relations: Identifying British Maritime Strategies in the South Atlantic during the 18th century. Her thesis was subsequently published in 2008 in the Springer Series in Underwater Archaeology as Maritime Archaeology and Social Relations: British action in the Southern Hemisphere (Kluwer/Springer, New York). After working at English Heritage for some time, Virginia now holds a position as a maritime archaeologist with the Hampshire and Wight Trust for Maritime Archaeology in the UK see: <http://www.hwtma.org.uk/>

Dr James (Jim) P. Delgado was a PhD candidate in the Department of Anthropology at Simon Fraser University (2003-2006) and his PhD was awarded in 2006 for a thesis entitled Gold Rush Entrepot: The Maritime Archaeology of the Rise of the Port of San Francisco. His thesis was recently published (2009) by the University of California Press as Gold Rush Port: The Maritime Archaeology of San Francisco's waterfront. Jim was the Director of the Vancouver Maritime Museum in Canada and is now the President and Executive Officer of the Institute for Nautical Archaeology (INA), based at Texas A & M University in College Station, Texas, USA see: <http://ina.tamu.edu/>

Dr Rachel Horlings was a PhD candidate in the Department of Anthropology at Syracuse University, USA and she successfully defended her PhD dissertation in February 2011 and expects to graduate in May 2011. Her research was on underwater cultural heritage in Ghana, West Africa.

Academic Research Grants

In the last ten years (2001-2012) I have been awarded nearly $750,000 in research grants including two nationally competitive ARC Linkage grants.

ARC Linkage Grant (2011-2014)	$ 500,000
ARC Linkage (APA Industry) Grant (2009-2011)	$ 78,000
